The 2019 Ford F-150 is one of the most popular trucks in the United States. That it's also one of the most capable vehicles on the road today is no accident. A wide range of trim levels, many available powertrains, and big towing and hauling capabilities make the F-150 a top-tier full-size pickup truck.

Although it is not just a brawny pickup truck, the F-150 is also versatile enough for family duty. The interior is modern and comfortable with many high-class features. Sync 3's infotainment system lets you connect your smartphone, while advanced driver safety aids help you stay safe. There is a standard feature on every F-150: forward collision warning with automatic braking.

There are six engines available on the F-150, including a basic V6 and a 450-horsepower turbocharged V6. Of course, if trailer-pulling power is what you're looking for, it's still got you covered. The F-150 now comes with a 3.0-liter diesel engine in its six-engine lineup. In terms of towing power, it's probably the best option, but its significant price increase must be considered.
